
ok now i'm stuck. I am unable to use apt or Synaptic I'm using 15.10 hello all. i have just tried the ubuntu manual installer and i get the error "could not download the release notes any ideas? Anyone know if it is possible to install samba to share some directories on a specific ubuntu machine, without it asking for a pw? Guest52735: just install it from the repositories ok. i have done that how do i know which to download or how do i know if its the right one Guest52735: 'apt-cache policy PACKAGE' ok so I'm on ubuntu 15.10 how do i go about getting my wifi working? It works on the laptop but not on the desktop jesse_: first step would be to find out which wifi chip you have. how can I do that? I don't think it's a broadcom one, I'm pretty sure it's an intel chip but I'm not positive 'lsb_release -a' should tell you just got a new computer but it didn't come with wifi, I'm using the one in the other computer, it says I'm on ubuntu 15.10 jesse_: then you have intel, you need to install 'bcmwl-kernel-source'. the driver will be in the repositories. how do I install it? apt-get bcmwl-kernel-source? !bem Help with Broadcom bcm43xx can be found at thanks ducasse: Thank you 82157476af
